Round About

For paper lanterns that shine bright with elegance, layer on the monochromatic magic. Ours feature floral picks in the forms of purple ranunculus, lavender and magnolias, which sit atop mini fan palms.

Tip: Cut away stems before attaching flowers with hot glue.

Amongst the needlepoint supplies you'll find the perfect base for a minimalist wreath—hello, embroidery hoop! Hot glue floral picks (eucalyptus, ranunculus and berries) onto the hoop, add a gold-painted chipboard greeting, and combine it with a wood sign from Crafts.

Pick A Pocket

Tucked inside this galvanized metal wall planter is floral foam and moss, while peeking out is an array of picks and stems. We say choose a focal point (like a succulent) and give the other florals supporting roles. P.S. Our label is made with deco bark and chipboard letters.

In A Blink

From the vase up, here's the 411 on this fashion-forward piece: Coat the inside of a clear glass container with white craft acrylic paint, add paper-cut eyelashes, and fill with sand or pebbles. Then build a layered arrangement—hydrangea picks at the front, berry sprays in the back, and a couple ranunculi picks in the middle.

Country Cluster

The trick to using relatively short floral picks with a tall vase? The filler! We put newspaper in the bottom of this galvanized metal container, stacked floral foam on top, and arranged away. Tip: Use thinner picks and sprays to give your bouquet nice height.

Pick a Stitch

Charming? Unexpected? That's our kind of wall hanging.

Base: rows of half-double crochet and back loop half-double crochet stitches. Flowers: DIY'd floral-pick bouquets attached with hot glue (or try slipping their stems through the crocheting for interchangeability!).

All Together Now

When the floral picks are in full bloom, the monogram letter (Home Accents) comes pre-painted, and the hangable wooden plaque (Crafts) just needs a quick striping of paint, you'll have custom decor in no time flat.
